

Cheer for a Cure: Cumberland Cheerleaders Raise Over One Thousand Dollars for Breast Cancer Research

The Cumberland Elementary School Cheerleaders recently raised $1,018 for the Susan G. Komen Foundation to help fund research to cure breast cancer. Through t-shirt sales and donations, the Cumberland cheerleaders are contributing to a cause that hits close to home for many in our community. "It's so inspiring to see young girls chip in and help raise money to end breast cancer," said Coach Pam Raleigh. "This is an issue that is not only important for them to be aware of, but also for them to fight against. We don't like losing to anyone, and we want our girls to take the same stance towards breast cancer." The issue of breast cancer awareness is very important to Coach Loreyn Eldridge, "Breast cancer has affected the lives of many on our squad, including my own family, and I believe it is important for our girls to help in any way they can." The coaches and cheerleaders would like to thank the faculty and staff of CES, family members, the community, and anyone else who helped support Cheer for a Cure. If you would like to join the fight against breast cancer, contact Loreyn Eldridge or Pam Raleigh at Cumberland Elementary School, or visit www.komen.org.
