

The Harlan County High School Life Skills class and Family, Career, & Community Leaders of America Club recently completed a service-learning project to improve children's literacy. After studying a unit on child development in Ms. Tammy Nance's class, students compiled 300 "Read to Your Baby" literacy packets. The packets are designed to promote reading aloud to children for 20 minutes every day, and include a children's book, brochures from the Harlan County Public Library, and parenting booklets from Cumberland Family Resource & Youth Service Center. The class donated the packets to Harlan ARH Hospital where they will be distributed to the parents of every newborn baby. This project was made possible by a service-learning mini-grant through Harlan County Schools Community Education.

Harlan County High School students in Ms. Tammy Nance's Life Skills class and FCCLA Club display the "Read to Your Baby" packets they developed to promote reading aloud to children. The packets have been donated to Harlan ARH Hospital to give to the parents of every newborn baby.

