

In order to promote more social interaction among our middle school girls outside of the classroom, Cawood Elementary has started a “Girls’ Nite” once a month. The girls and sponsors, Mrs. Sheba Ramsey and Emily Boggs, discussed various activities that they thought would be fun. Some of those activities included playing board games, watching movies, making crafts, and other seasonal activities. For the month of October, the girls watched Hocus Pocus in the library on Monday, October 22 from 6:00-8:30 pm. They enjoyed popcorn, snacks, drinks, and lots of girl talk. These activities will be offered each month free or at a minimal cost. We hope this will build positive relationships for our girls in a comfortable environment where they are free to share their ideas and feelings.
