

Black Mountain seventh grade students practice collecting data in order to support a claim by measuring the bubble size produced by different soap brands.

